-a word in edgewise; wise and otherwise

P. R. MILNES

The opinions expressed in this column are the personal views of the writer and do not necessarily reflect those of the management; in fact, many times they do not.—Editor.

ABOUT PEDESTRIANS.

I do not hope to please everybody with this column; in fact I do not even try to do so. I do not expect and do not want everybody to agree with me. The reader has just as good a right to his or her opinion as I have to mine and on that we have no quarrel. The chances are he is more often right than I am. However what is expressed is my belief or conviction and as a free human being I have a right to say it, and perhaps more fortunate than most, have the opportunity to put it in print. Or am I more fortunate?

On several occasions I have laid the rod of my wrath on automobile drivers in this immediate locality. What I said about them was not complimentary, and I still am of the opinion that there is a lot of people hereabouts who ought to be in jail for endangering the lives of other people by their criminally careless methods of handling the wheel.

Now a reader comes forward and wants to know why I "pan" the drivers and forget to mention that pedestrians are contributing factors to the death and injury toll that is attributable to the gasoline buggies?

The answer is that I have chastised them on several occasions with the most vitrolic adjectives at my command and emptied the vials of my wrath upon them. Not that it did any good, I am sorry

George F. Meyers, 43, of Oakland was lodged in the city jail at El Cerrito yesterday on charges of driving while drunk following an auto accident at Orchard and San Pablo avenues. He was later freed on $200 bail.

Police charge Meyers crashed into a car being driven by Oscar Beebe of 427 Albermarle street, El Cerrito at the intersection. Beebe sustained several bruises on his arm. Both cars were badly damaged. Meyers was not injured.

With Meyers was an unidentified woman whom police say was also intoxicated. However, Officer Ed Smith could not arrest the woman as there is no place in the El Cerrito city jail to lodge female prisoners. Smith solved the problem by turning the woman loose.

Bubble Dance Jeopardized By Ubiquitous Lads

SAN DIEGO, April 15.—UP—Police officers prowled through crowds attending Sally Rand's outdoor fan and bubble dance tonight to prevent small boys from sniping at the bubbles with slingshots.

The boys disrupted her first performance this afternoon with accurate shots from nearby trees and hit Sally in tender spots as well as breaking bubbles. Miss Rand retreated to her dressing room for new bubbles, returned and went on with the show.

To add to her difficulties, a swarm of bees moved into shrubbery around the plaza pool where she appears daily in her dance "Leda and the Swan." She still is un-stung but spectators reported several new and somewhat erratic movements had been added to the dance.

EDEN WILL OFFER DUCE A BARGAIN

LONDON, April 15.—UP—Great Britain may offer to suspend sanctions against Italy in return for immediate cessation of hostilities in Ethiopia, diplomatic quarters reported tonight.

Following Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden's departure for Geneva developments indicated that Britain is eager for early peace.

FAVORABLE TERMS

She was represented as reconciled to the fact that peace terms now must be more favorable to Italy than the abortive Hoare-Laval proposals, which would have pacified Italy with half of Ethiopia.

It was regarded as highly significant that the Ethiopian minister to the court of St. James, Azaj Martin, during the past few days made vigorous but futile attempts to obtain British credits to finance the purchase of munitions here.

DEFEAT INEVITABLE

Martin made his appeals to the Foreign Office, but British armament firms declined to sell to

African City Is Captured By Italians

ITALIAN FIELD HEADQUARTERS, NORTHERN ETHIOPIA, April 15.—UP—Paving the way for a final offensive against Addis Ababa, Italian troops today occupied Dessye, Emperor Haile Selassie's field headquarters, and hoisted the tricolor of Italy over the Gebbi or Ducal Palace.

Occupation of Dessye revived indications that Marshal Pietro Badoglio, supreme commander in East Africa, will smash his way through to Haile Selassie's capital as soon as General Rodolpho Graziani, commanding Italian troops on the southern front, protects the northern army's flank.

READY FOR DRIVE

Graziani is poised ready to attack the armies of the Dedjazmach Nasibu, governor of Harrar province. Capture of Harrar, Jijiga and Dire Dawa, remaining Ethiopian strongholds, would put Graziani in a position to protect Badoglio's

FREEZE OUT LOOMS OVER DOCK ROWS

SAN FRANCISCO, April 15.—UP—Employers coldly rebuffed peace overtures by local union longshoremen today as issues in the port's gravest labor crisis in three years narrowed down to a "freeze out" contest.

"Request of International Longshoremen's Association local for a meeting of the labor relations committee has been referred to district officers of the I. L. A., inasmuch as we have suspended all relations with the San Francisco local," said a curt announcement by the Waterfront Employers Association.

NO FURTHER ACTION

William J. Lewis, district president of the I. L. A., passed the reference on to W. T. Morris, district secretary of the union, in Seattle, Wash.

The union took no further immediate action beyond an announcement of a mass meeting tomorrow night to discuss future policies in the situation.

Rolling Laddies Joins Elect At E. C. Kennel Club

Rolling Laddie of the My Laddie family of greyhounds today joins two other dogs in the select circle at El Cerrito Kennel club track. Rolling Laddie, We Lad of Sy Sampson's kennel and To To of Jim Trout's leading kennel are the only dogs of the 600 registered at El Cerrito to win four races during the spring meeting. Four victories sounds like a small number, but it is figured the dogs only run twice a week, or at most three times a week, and that the competition is the very best to be found at any track, four wins is an achievement. To To and Rolling Laddie made their four in a row each, but We Lad has scattered his wins.

Trout's kennel leads today with 15 victories. Miss Jane B. Luton is second with 13 first place. E. B. Thompson has 12. F. H. 'Spec' Wester and the Yellowstone Kennel have 11 each. These figures are valuable to the fans who like to follow winning kennels.

Given Judgment On Insurance Policy

MARTINEZ, April 15—Judgment of $550, which he charges is due him under an insurance policy, was asked today by Hjalmar A. Westman in a suit filed in superior court against the Occidental Life Insurance Company.

Westman says he took out the policy in El Cerrito on December 5, 1934.

He asserts that on May 6, 1935, he was injured while working as a welder at the Ford automobile plant and one ankle was permanently disabled. He claims the amount is due him under the insurance policy.

GIANTS LEAD AFTER VICTORY OVER BROOKLYN

NEW YORK, April 15—UP—The New York Giants and Pittsburgh Pirates pulled in front in the National League pennant race today when they won their second consecutive games.

Committee Of Seven Named To Boost County

MARTINEZ, April 15—A committee of seven, consisting of Percy Sanford, president of the Richmond chamber of commerce, as chairman Harry Barnes, secretary of the Martinez chamber of commerce, as secretary; A. R. Bryce, president of the Pittsburg chamber of commerce Guy Spencer, county horticultural commissioner, John F. Galvin, publisher of the Richmond Daily Independent; Mayor W. W. Soctt of Richmond and J. A. Mitchell, manager of the Walnut Creek branch of the Bank of America, was named today at a luncheon meeting in this city to work out a plan or organization for a county wide promotion movement.

The meeting was attended by representatives from practically every section of the county, and is a forerunner of future meetings that will result in an organization that will be county wide.

When the plan for formation of the organization was launched by Chairman Sanford the first speaker called upon was Fred Parr, of the Richmond Parr Terminals, and who has been closely identified with the industrial development in that end of the county.

"This movement is too big for any particular community to undertake," said Parr. "What we should have is a county wide committee to work for the promotion of the interests of the county—interests that are destined to grow as a result of construction of the San Francisco-Oakland bay bridge. We have everything to offer in the way of industrial sites, agricultural opportunities second to none in the state, wonderful climate, beautiful home sites. No other place in the San Francisco bay area offers such a diversity of possibilities. People are looking for location. We have it to offer them."

The committee will work out a program of officers and a financial plan which will be submitted at a meeting to be held one month hence.

CREW AT YALE MADE FROM RAW MATERIAL

NEW HAVEN, Conn., April 15—UP—Beset by ineligibles, knee injuries, and poor rowing conditions due to the heavy spring floods, the Yale varsity has been rowing with the first boat during the daily double drills through which Coach Ed Leader has been sending his men since they returned to New Haven after spring vacation. Jim Castle, of Honolulu, captain and stroke, occupies his old position, but the rest of the boat is composed of men who have not had varsity experience.

Leighton McCartney, a senior who has been boated at bow, rowed with the varsity in one sprint race last spring, but the others have never before risen higher than the Junior Varsity. Bob Belknap, who counted so heavily in last year's crew victories and who has been one of Coach Ed Leaders' mainstay for two years, has been out with a bad knee for more than a month. Coaches have been told by physicians that his return to the crew this year is "extremely doubtful."

FIVE GRADUATED LAST YEAR

In addition to the threatened loss of Belknap, the 1936 crew will take to the water without the services of five first-boat men who were graduated last June. Two sophomores, Bill Brown and Burton McLean, who showed up well last spring with the cub heavies, have been pushed forward to places on the first shell Despite lack of experience they have managed to hold their own with the more seasoned completition.

"The freshmen had an outstanding bunch of rowers last year," Leader said, "and more than two sophomores should be in the first and second boats now. It just happens that scholastic ineligibility keeps the entire four men of last spring's starboard side out of the boats this year."

The university boats are not the only victims of a jinx. The jayvee 150-pound crew faces prospects of losing Capt. Dwight Robertson for the season. He has been barred because of overweight.

"And to top off all these breaks" lamented Leader, "the cold weather has prevented us from getting out on the water for a chance to start correcting some green faults."

OAKLAND OAKS TRIM PADRES; SEATTLE WINS

(BY UNITED PRESS)

Seattle, driving for first place in the Coast League, evened the current week's series with San Francisco Wednesday by humbling the Seals 4 to 2.

Chucker Paul Gregory set the Seals down with six hits while Lou McAvoy was tapped for 11 times. The northerners opened their scoring in the first inning with two tallies when Taylor and Dunnavan were chased in by a flurry of safeties and walks. The Seals did their counting in the second when Barath reached home on Monzo's single and Gira scored on Bassler's error.

Oakland clung to its lead in the standings, knocking over the San Diego Pardes, 2-0. Behind the tight pitching of Olds, who allowed the southerners but nine hits, the Oaks touched Hockett for nine bingles.

Flawless ball playing held the teams scoreless until the sixth when Billy Meyers' crew took advantage of Diviceros' base hit to bring him in on a sacrifice and a single. The Oaklanders finished their tallying in the eight when Lodigiani scored Uhalt on a single.

At Sacramento, the touted Missions fell victims to another surprise onsaught by the 'bush league' Senators who won 5 to 1.

Portland and Los Angeles, feuding in the cellar bracket, drove into their free hitting series with a second victory for the Beavers, 9 to 5.

Black To Head Memorial Drive For Thos. Edison

SAN FRANCISCO, April 15.—J. B. Black, president of the Pacific Gas and Electric Company, has accepted chairmanship of the western regional committee which will conduct the Thomas Alva Edison Foundation Commemorative Campaign.

Invitation to assume the task of organizing the western states in support of the Edison memorial movement came to Mr. Black from Owen D. Young, chairman of the national committee. As western chairman Black will form a regional committee to represent the States of California, Nevada, Utah, Idaho, Washington and Oregon. Members of the committee will be outstanding leaders in industry, commerce and in education.

The Thomas Alva Edison Fundation was incorporated in 1935 in response to a spontaneous demand since the inventor's death in 1931, for national commemoration of the life and works of America's greatest inventive genius.

Following organization of the Foundation a national committee was formed to raise funds by popular subscription throughout the country for accomplishment of its purpose. First of these will be to establish a living memorial, in the form of scholarships, to perpetuate Thomas A. Edison's interest in the advancement of American youth in science, engineering and invention.

The Foundation will set up a permanent fund for the support of 100 Edison scholarships to be awarded annually to candidates ambitious to follow in Edison's footsteps in creative study and research. Each candidate awarded a schoarship will be privileged to choose the institution of learning he wishes to attend. In keeping with the Edison principle, selection of students will be based upon criteria of fitness for study and research rather than solely upon previous academic training.

Participating in the fund raising campaign will be educational and civic organizations, the American Institute of Electrical Engineers and other scientific and techincal bodies, and the great industries which owe their origin to Edison's inventions.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—
Without Calomel—And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Your whole system is poisoned and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

Laxatives are only makeshifts. A mere bowel movement doesn't get at the cause. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up". Harmless, gentle, yet amazing in making bile flow freely. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name. Stubbornly refuse anything else. 25c.

KNOX WINS IN ILLINOIS; F. D. R. LEADS

WASHINGTON, April 15.—UP—President Roosevelt emerged tonight with top honors from two farm belt presidential preference primaries, and in one of them Frank Knox of Chicago won a decision—but no knockout—over Senator William E. Borah in their contest for the Republican nomination.

Knox won the Illinois preference primary by a sufficient but not overwhelming majority over Borah's vote. Knox's greatest strength lay in Cook County (Chicago) while Borah ran better in the down state, rural region. The Senator claimed a moral victory and intimated that Knox' Cook county majority should not be included in calculations seeking to measure Borah for President sentimet among farm folk and small town voters.

BORAH ELATED

"Frank Knox carried Chicago, but I carried Illinois," Borah remarked cryptically when late returns showed he would trail the former to the finish.

Borah was unopposed in the Nebraska primary and won easily despite a write-in movement for Governor Alf M. Landon. More significant to smoe observers than Borah's lead over Landon was Roosevelt's lead over their combined vote. The President also appeared to be running up a 1,200,000 vote in Illinois' Democratic preference poll which would exceed the total vote cast for Knox and Borah.

TOWNSENDITE NOMINATED

Nebraska Democrats' action in nominating Terry Carpenter, a former Representative and an advocate of the Townsend old age pension, for the United States Senate started a Democratic bolt. Senator Edward R. Burke, Democrat, Nebraska, announced he would support Senator George W. Norris, a Republican, against Carpenter if Norris would run. Norris' term expires this year but he refused to enter the Nebraska primaries. Well informed persons expect him to go into the election campaign proper as an independent candidate to succeed himself. He always has run as a Republican although in 1928 and 1932 he supported Democratic presidential candidates against Herbert C. Hoover.

"If early returns are borne out by official results," Burke told the United Press, "and the party nominees are as indicated, there is additional and conclusive evidence why Senator Norris should be filed as a candidate by petition. He will receive my support if he does so. From Norris to Carpenter is too long a leap for me to take."

DEMOCRATS PLEASED

Democrats were eager to capitalize what they considered a Roosevelt triumph in Nebraska and Illinois. They pointed out that last week in the Wisconsin primary Mr. Roosevelt also ran far ahead of the Republican presidential preference aggregate. Borah won 21 of 24 Wisconsin delegates to the Republican national convention. Neither the Illinois nor Nebraska primaries is binding on convention delegates.

The votes were more important as a sample of the respective strength of Borah, Knox and the President than as a division of actual delegate strength.

AIR MYSTERY IS AGAIN IN POLICE PROBE

ALAMEDA, April 15.—UP—Alameda police tonight sought to unravel the year-old mystery disappearance of Mrs. Doris Tretheway and Richard Smith, who last April flew towards Mexico in an airplane and never were seen again.

Today Elmer Tretheway won a divorce from his wife in a court here. At the same time, officers questioned Fred Johnson, Oakland real estate salesman, who reported a friend had told him he had seen a letter written to another friend, by Smith, saying the couple were living in Antonio Texas.

Johnson said he was informed the airplane in which they disappeared had been confiscated in Mexico. He declined to reveal identities of the persons he referred to.

Mrs. Tretheway's family has spent a large sum of money searching California for trace of her or the plane. Friends previously speculated the pair had flown out over the ocean in a suicide pact.

Tretheway obtained his divorce on the ground his wife "bit and scratched him and preferred the company of another man."

A flashing new serial novel by Richard Sale

"MAKE her give up the great ruby — or let her make ready to die!"

This was the gist of the warning that Emery Harding received. The reference was to his daughter and the blood-red jewel she had bought from an old sea captain.

Harding was no man to surrender without a fight. Yet he feared not to comply. More precious than all the rubies in the world to him was Audrey. But the gem was hers. He sought to save them both. FAMOUS FILM WILL BE SEEN AT FOX TODAY

"The Trail Of The Lonsome Pine" feature-length picture, which takes the camera out of doors to reproduce a tale of mountaineers in the colors of real life, opens at the Fox theater today, on a double program with George M. Cohan's sensational Broadway hit, "The Song and Dance Man."

"The Trail of the Lonesome Pine" has done more than just start a cycle of outdoor films. Heretofore, whenever color was used on the screen, it was the dominating factor of the picture. Director Henry Hathaway believed that such should not be the case.

As about 80 percent of the picture was filmed outdoors, nature took care of the color problem very well. But at times even she became too brilliant, flowers and the like detracted from the players' action. So they were dug up and moved out of camera range. The result is a picture in neutral hues that augment rather than detract from the story values.

Sylvia Sidney, Fred MacMurray and Henry Fonda are co-starred in this production, supported by Fred Stone, Robert Barrat and Fuzzy Knight.

Recognized by theatergoers as one of the most human stories ever written about theatrical life, "Song and Dance Man" narrates the drama and comedy of the quiet, self-sacrifice of a poor ham-and-egg song and dance man who steps out of the picture when his girl has a chance to make the big time on her own. Claire Trevor, Paul Kelly, Michael Whalen and Ruth Donnelly essay the leading roles.

The DAILY WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

WASHINGTON, April 15—Despite all the alleged mystery about airplane crashes, those on the inside know there is not very much mystery about them. Usually the Commerce Department is trying to cover up its blunders or else the aviation companies are trying to cover up theirs.

The recent air tragedy near Uniontown, Pa., may never be cleared up officially. But insiders known that the radio beam, on which the pilot set his course, had been reported off.

A check on thirteen pilots of the Pennsylvania Airline, flying over almost the same route, showed that five times each of them was in danger due to a faulty beam.

This report probably never will get out. The Commerce Department will not put it out, because it operates the beam.

Actually, the Department may not have been at fault. Sometimes weather phenomena will swing a beam twenty miles or so off-course. The pilot following it does not know when this occurs. As probably happened at Uniontown, he may let himself down blind, thinking he is at his destination.

CUTTING MYSTERY

This was one cause of the crash in Missouri that killed Senator Bronson Cutting. The radio beam followed by the pilot was eighteen miles off. In this case, however, the Commerce Department was at fault. The beam was not properly operated by its air station.

Even more tragic, its air station reported a ceiling of 1,200 feet. Actually the fog was as thick as soup, on the ground. Automobiles had to crawl through it.

What the Commerce Department never admitted, but which a Senate committee shortly will expose, is that the man supposed to be operating the beam and sending out weather reports was out with a woman while a young substitute was doing his work.

Not ony did the Commerce Department hush this up, but afterward they promoted the operator.

ARKANSAS MYSTERY

Insiders also know there was no real mystery about the plane which crashed in the swamps of Arkansas last winter, killing seventeen people.

Reports were circulated of a morphine addict, a mysterious bullet hole. But there was nothing to this. The explanation was fairly simple.

The hop between Memphis and Little Rock, on which the plane was flying when it crashed—is short. In making it, pilots are tempted to fly close to the ground. If they attain altitude they lose time. This is because the Commerce Department specifies that no plane can lose altitude faster than 400 feet a minute. Thus to come down 10,000 feet requires twenty-five minutes.

Explanation of the Arkansas crash is that the plane was flying low. Some witnesses estimated its height at around 100 feet. The lights on the gas tanks at the time of the crash showed that one was empty and it was time for pilot to regulators when air pockets, shot the plane into the trees.

But the Commerce Department was reticent regarding important details. The day before its report was made public, C. R. Smith, head of American Airways, conferred with Eugene Vidal, Air Commerce Director.

BOMB MYSTERY

Also there was the mysterious crash in the mountains of New York eighteen months ago, when there were reports of a passenger carrying a package supposed to contain nitroglycerine or some other high explosive.

Actually, aviation experts say that the plane was new, had not been sufficently tested and that vibration caused the wing to come off.

BEAM EXPERIMENTATION

The new radio beam, which probably caused the accident at Uniontown, is an attempt to remedy the defects of the old beam.

The old beam had to be interrupted whenever weather reports were sent out, in order to use the same channel. Thus a pilot might be ready for a landing, and be forced to cruise around in the air for fifteen or twenty minutes, waiting for weather reports to stop so he could get the beam again.

This was one cause of the delay to Senator Cutting's plane at Kansas City. It had to wait for the plane ahead to get weather reports and land. But that time the weather at Kansas City had become too bad, and the plane had to head for Kirksville, Mo.

The new radio beam is an attempt to send weather reports simultaneously with the beam. It is not completely perfected.

Pan-American Airways, which has one of the best accident records uses a radio compass instead of radio beam. Safest system, however is to use both. This is the combination used by the U. S. Coast Guard, which has an excellent flying record.

When this has been urged on commercial aviation companies, some of them have complained that it is too expensive. Apparenty life is cheaper than equipment.

FUTURE VETERANS

The Princeton boys who gave birth to the "Veterans of Future Wars' are getting big play in the press but small play in the professors' grade books.

The idea first broke just as juniors were due to turn in their departmental papers, and seniors their theses.

Lew Gorin, 'National Commander wangled a week's extension from the politics department, and changed his thesis subject from "Machiavellianism in Modern Dictators" to "A History of the Veterans of Future Wars."

That opus shortly will be brought out by a New York publisher under the title, "Patriotism Prepaid."

Meanwhile intercollegiate complications threatened. President MacCracken of Vassar deeply resented the establishment of the "Future Gold Star Mothers" post among his girls, and he bustled from Poughkeepsie to Princeton to demand an official apology.

Dean Gauss of Princeton backed up his boys. There was no apology.

Subsisting on contributions totaling $350, the boys are excited but uncertain about the future antics of their bear they have by the tail.

NEW YORK INSIDE OUT

By DON O'MALLEY

NEW YORK, April 15— What shows are left from the season's wreckage to put on your Spring visiting list?

There are twenty-seven in all to pick from, and a surprisingly large percentage are virtually smash hits. In the order of box office draw, the big guns on the dramatic front are "Idiot's Delight" "Victoria Regina" 'Saint Joan" "Boy Meets Girl" "First Lady" and "Dead End.' Close on their heels come 'Call It a Day" "Ethan Frome," "Pride and Prejudice" and "Three Men on a Horse"

The funniest of the plays are the "Three Men" opus and "Boy Meets Girl". "Idiot's Delight" with the Lunts, is the best all-round theatrical piece. Helen Hayes in "Victoria Regina' and Katharine Cornell in "Saint Joan" are the two leading ladies of the current stage. If you like deliciate, old-fashioned comedy, "Pride and Prejudice" will furnish it. For homely, pleasant matrimonial complications, it's "Call It a Day." The rough, slice-of-life stuff is to be found in "Dead End."

VIGIL—Over in the swank region around Newport are supposed to live society's upper crust of fashionables, but apparently they're not averse to snitching a free flower now and then when opportunity comes.

Louise Van Alen Mdivani, up to a few days ago, had a standing order for two hundred white gardenias to be placed daily on the late Prince Serge Mdivanis' grave. But people came from miles around to lift the blooms for souvenirs, and now the order is canceled.

The gardenias were only one of the spectacular gestures the Prince's widow was made since her husband's accidental death in Florida. On the funeral train up from Palm Beach, she rode along in the baggage car containing the Prince's body. All through the vigil she kept burning candles at the front and head of the casket.

The Mdivani family history is filled with strange things.

CHAPTER XXXV

JILL came back to Dr. Lawson's desk and stood directly in front of him—forced his distressed eyes to meet her direct gaze. Of the two, she seemed the least disturbed.

"Jill, I'm sorry. I——"

"Let me sit there at your desk," she interrupted. "Give me pen, paper and envelope."

He obeyed. She wrote for a few minutes, then folded the paper and put it in the envelope. Then she rose.

"You are to give this note to Len."

"Jill—"

"Skip it". She smiled at him. "You can diagnose most cases with amazing accuracy, but on this one—"

She drew his head down and whispered to him. Then she gave him an impulsive kiss.

Eve, coming in just then, stared incredulously, and started to leave.

"Oh, come back here!" Jill ran after her and forced her back into the room. "Len has told me all about you and this sweet meddler. And now—goodbye!"

She hurried out.

EVE STARED in amazement as Dr. Lawson dropped into a chair.

"Well, I'll be darned!" he exclaimed. "She just told me that she let herself get engaged to Len because she felt so sorry for him when he thought Marianne had eloped to Europe with Deslie! She's been wondering how she could ease out of the engagement later. Get Len."

"When Eve found Len and brought him to the office the doctor gave him the note with the terse explanation:

"Jill left this for you."

Leonard read it, gasped, and read it again. When he spoke, his face was shining with happiness.

"Jill—she doesn't want to marry me. It's Tom—Tom Robley. She's cared for him all the time. Felt sorry for me. Where is Marianne? Tell me!"

"Didn't David tell you?" Dr. Lawson asked significantly.

"David? No—that is—you mean she has gone to Centerville!"

He turned and was gone before either Eve or the doctor could deny or affirm his statement.

MARIANNE, arriving in Centerville, went to her old rooming house to find the same landlady and a number of the same roomers. They gathered around her on the porch, curious and excited, to learn all that had happened.

"How's your Ma and—er—Eve?" the landlady asked.

"Mother is fine and," clear and unashamed. "Eve is with us. She has a good job at a hospital."

"That's fine," the landlady said sincerely, as she beckoned to a girl who was passing. "Come up here, Miss Moss, and meet Miss Minear. She used to live in Centerville. You'll want an item for the paper, I suppose. Miss Minear is a big success in the city."

Marianne laughed and willingly submitted to being questioned by the girl reporter.

"And that nice young man who used to come out here every night. What happened to him?" the landlady put in.

"You mean Leonard Bailey?" Marianne tried to make her tone casual. The reporter cocked an attentive ear.

"Uh-huh. Kinda writin' feller though he worked in the plumbing shop."

"He's a successful author now Got ten thousand dollars for his last serial."

"My stars! Wait until I tell that to Shirley!"

The landlady waddled off. The reporter asked a few more questions, then left.

THE NEXT day, under the head "Local Girl Success In Business," Marianne read that it was only a matter of time before she would become president of her own.

"I'll clip that and send it to Gleason," she reflected, with the first smile that had touched her face for days. "He'll hit the ceiling!"

Just then the landlady called: "Telephone, Marianne," and in a lower voice, "It's Sabra Anderson. Looks like that newspaper story is getting you into society!"

Marianne went to the telephone. Sabra Anderson! Why should Sabra call her?

Hollywood Film Shop

HOLLYWOOD, April 15—UP—The bar lost a lawyer who was waiting for clients when Ralph Morgan turned to acting for a career.

With his barrister degree and the right to practice, Morgan set up office in New York and waited for clients. He waited a year and then decided that heavy books of Blackstone were rather boring and unprofitable companions. He closed his office.

The theater appeared more interesting. Morgan made the rounds of the agencies and made a number of friendships with actors, actresses, producers and agents.

In seeking his theatrical career Morgan was acting without parental consent. His father, George Wuppermann, a merchant and his mother, Josephine Hancox, daughter of Commodore Hancocx of Civil War fame, had voted against the undertaking. Later when he had won some success and recognition they approved his occupation, he says.

A juvenile part in 'The Bachelor' was his first role. Then followed swiftly parts in "Fair and Warmer" "Turn to the Right" "Buddies" "Corba", and "In Love With Love" The triumphant march included considerable recognition as an outstanding member of the New York and London companies of "Strange Interlude" in the role of "Charlie."

It was that part of the O'Neil play that brought Morgan to the screen with the serious intention of remaining a resident of Hollywood.

His first experience with the screen was in a picture starring Thomas Meighan.

"The part was so small I don't even remember the name of the character," he says.

It was not until 1931, after five seasons at odd intervals with Pacific Coast stock companies, that Morgan signed his first long-term motion picture contract.

The ex-barrister is married to Grace Arnold, formerly of the stage. They have one daughter Gloria.

PRISONERS SAY LAST FAREWELL TO S. Q. HEAD

SAN QUENTIN PRISON, April 15—UP—A band of grey-clad, awkward convicts, including 15 men sentenced to die for murder, sidled into the office of Warden James B. Holohan today and said official goodby to the head keeper of the biggest of the "big houses."

"Warden Jim" big, kindly 65-year old shepherd of 20,000 California law-breakers during the past decade, left San Quentin prison today after successfully directing the affairs of the most crowded penal institution in American for nine years.

Since September, 1927, Holohan has watched over the ebbing and flowing masses of "termers." They jammed into the prison, 6000 at a time, and went through their daily routine in accomodations meant for only 3000.

But despite the momentary anticination of authorities the world over, San Quentin under Holohan never became the seething volcano of prisoners' revolt which other institutions with better facilities have known.

Only minor outbreaks—one of which nearly cost Holohan his life—marked the wardenship of the man who spent 45 years of his life in public service and much of that in a study of penology.

Holohan handed over the keys of the prison to Court Smith, former Folsom prison warden, who will succeed him. Then he left for the peace and quiet of a Santa Clara valley apple orchard, where he will live with his family.

Holohan leaves behind him a kaleidoscopic, hectic experience, clouded by the executions he hated to witness and lightened by the respect he earned from inmates and the progress he made.

BRAIN FOOD

Is it possible to select certain foods out of which we can build brain power? This question occurs to many whose occupations call for an extraordinary amount of thinking—how can we improve and develop the brain substance?

In the first place, does a large brain signify large mental power? Emphatically—No! There are many who still labor under the delusion that a large head, and, consequently, a large brain, means enormous thinking ability. Such an assumption is not supported by facts. Scientists know today that the size of the brain itself has nothing to do with the power of thought.

Many brains of famous men noted for their superior mental qualifications have been examined after death in order to arrive at this conclusion. Comparisons of these brains with those from persons of ordinary intelligence shows only one distinct difference. That is in the variations found in the convolutions and "wrinkles" found on the brain.

Those possessed of superior intelligence always exhibit a large number of these "wrinkles," while the brains of those of a low order of intelligence have fewer wrinkles. To the scientist this means only one thing, i.e., that those with the most convolutions have used their brains more than the others. Some of the largest brains have very few while the brain from a small head is often literally covered with fine wrinkles and convolutions.

Thus, it may be surmised that we all have enough brain substance if we will but use it. It is important to study why some do not think as much as others. No doubt there are those who suffer from an inherent mental laziness, but in most cases it will be found that the energy needed for the process of thought is used elsewhere.

One of a gluttonous nature can never be a great thinker as the brain will be languid if the stomach is constantly being overworked. In a like manner, inharmonious mixtures of food in the stomach produce a food battle which diverts energy to that organ.

You all know how sleepy you feel after a large meal. Is it not possible that a chronic mental enervation will exist day after day, caused by dietetic indiscretions? If you are not thinking clear, constructive thoughts, look for such causes as these.

Also, increase your physical exercise in order to have a smoohter working physical organism as this will act as a generator of more energy which may be used in the mental processes. No particular kind of food is needed if you use a well-balanced diet. If you feel the need of more mental efficiency, remember the following points:

First—Never overeat.

Second—Eat only when hungry.

Third—Eat good food combinations.

Fourth—Exercise more.

Fifth—Study a variety of subjects.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

(Breaks Out in Perspiration)

Question: Mrs. N. R. writes: "I am middle aged, have been examined and the doctor says I am in good condition, yet I break out in perspiration and feel blue and anxious."

Answer: Perspiration such as you describe is one of the common symptoms attending the Menopause and it is likely that it will disappear within a reasonable time. I suggest that the best plan is for you to send for my new article on the Menopause which you may obtain by writing to me in care of this newspaper, and enclosing ten cents and one large, self-addressed envelope. Vague anxiety, together with mental depression, are frequently encountered during this particular period in a woman's life and while it is of no special significance, it can usually be overcome by building up an active interest. Be careful of your diet, and be sure of obtaining enough vigorous physical exercise each day to keep the muscles in normal tone. Also, take special care to avoid sluggish elimination. Through strict adherence to those rules of right living which build good health, the average woman is well able to pass through the Menopause in comfort. The fact that your physical examination shows that you are in good condition is a favorable factor.

(Sun-Suit for Asthmatic Child?)

Question: Mrs. S. M. asks: "Should a child with a tendency to asthma wear a sun-suit? I think the child should have the sun but my mother says the back should be protected. What shall I do?

Answer: The exposure of the skin of the asthmatic child to sunlight should prove of value and in fact, all children thrive more readily if allowed plenty of sunlight. However, of course it is necessary to make sure that the child is kept warm enough and on cold days, even though the sun may be shining, it would be advisable to substitute warmer clothing for the sun-suit. Let the child wear a sun-suit only when the day is warm so that he remains comfortable.

Athlete's Foot Is Serious Disease, But It Can Be Cured

By CLAUD NORTH CHRISMAN, M.D.

THE subject of athlete's foot comes up quite often. The shower rooms of gymnasiums and of public bathing pools continue to supply the contagion to extend the disease. The disease is essentially a ring-worm. The most common location at first is between the toes and in the palms of the hands. It is caused by a vegetable fungus, which develops under the skin and spreads in any direction. It's presence under the surface skin is one of the reasons why it is so difficult to obtain a permanent cure.

DR. CHRISMAN

This sort of ring-worm starts as a little blister or cluster of blisters, deep in the skin and feels like a little grain of sand under the surface. It grows best on a warm, moist surface. The top of the blister is rubbed off by scratching. A little watery serum is liberated, which dries and forms a slight crust. This spreads and becomes deeper. The skin gets soggy and tender.

The itching is sometimes intense and bacteria frequently enter these raw spots and produce considerable local inflammation. This is followed by a raw surface which may become so sore as to prevent walking. Under such circumstances the suffering is very severe.

The condition may spread all over the sole of the foot and run over the top, and by scratching and rubbing the contagion can be carried to almost any portion of the body.

How It Spreads

One suffering from the condition leaves some of the spores on the floors of bathrooms. The next person stepping on that spot may pick them up and develop the same trouble.

There are many remedies, all of which succeed sometimes and all fail at times. This is due to the fact that the treatment does not reach under the edge of the healthy skin and some spores remain alive. Then other bacteria entering the raw surface will complicate the condition.

Those persons whose hands and feet sweat profusely are more liable to be affected. Persistence in treatment and the avoidance of sources of re-infection will finally be rewarded. Probably the most common and reliable treatment is the use of Whitfields ointment. This is comprised of two parts salicylic acid and four parts benzoic acid in thirty parts of ointment base. It can be applied daily for several weeks without causing irritation.

It is well to soak the parts well and rub vigorously before making the first application so as to open up all the little blisters. An ointment of phenylmercuric nitrate in a concentration of 1:1,500 with 10 per cent glycerine in an oxychloresterin base is said to be non irritating and is frequently quite successful. It is used each day till the trouble disappears and then once or twice a week to prevent recurrence.

Weaker, for Children

Frank P. of New Jersey writes that he has suffered from athlete's foot for some time without being able to find relief. His two-year-old daughter has the same trouble. A slightly weaker ointment should be used on his little girl's skin.

Mrs. A. K. of New Jersey, is twenty-five years old. For several years, in the winter, she has been having pains in the lower part of her back. It lasts for a week or more. This winter the pain has been so bad that she was compelled to stay in bed for some days. When she did get up she felt as if a great weight was resting on her back.

She cannot bend forward or rise from a sitting position. She is evidently suffering from Lumbago or rheumatism of the muscles of the back and not from her kidneys as she thinks. Vigorous massage of her back muscles and application of heat will help.

Two Style "Naturals"

One of the most attractive of the femininities of this spring's fashions is the lingerie lei. It is really a happy combination of flowers and ruche—the two "naturals" of the season, and developed in white organdie, mousseline, taffeta or pique. It makes a very crisp and flattering complement for dresses and jacket ensembles, and offers a fresh interpretation of lingerie accessories for spring.

Everyone remembers the big hit that the fur lei made a few years ago. The lingerie neckline garland adopts a similar shape, making it possible to wear it forming a deep V at the front or in wider expressions toward the shoulders. It is an accessory, too, that fits perfectly into the evening picture—again as a fluttery accent for gowns.

Home Repairs in Order

House repairs are now in order. Spring is the season. Federal financial assistance is available, of course; but there are many small but vital items of repair which neighborhood mechanics will do for the pay prevailing in the city or town. Very important is the painting of the home, for paint is protective as well as decorative.

Spring Returns and With It Dexter Fellows

By TALBOT LAKE

SPRING has truly come. Circus posters have appeared in the windows of vacant stores and on billboards. Dexter Fellows will be a welcome visitor in the newspaper offices of the principal cities. It seems superfluous to explain who Mr. Fellows is. But it is a pleasure to repeat what has been said before, that he is the dean of press agents.

Ahead of Ringling Brothers and Barnum & Bailey's circus for more years than he likes to recall, by the fine qualities of personality he has endeared himself to newspaper editors throughout the United States.

His familiar appearance — gray mustache and tall stiff collar—always means that the newspaper editors will knock off work for a while and spend a delightful hour in gossip, not only of the circus but of journalism. For Mr. Fellows is a walking encyclopedia of newspaper knowledge. He knows who is working, where and why.

Mr. Fellows' business, of course, is to get as many stories of the circus as possible into the papers in advance of its showing. His task is not hard for two reasons. The circus is always news, and, besides, Mr. Fellows has such a reputation for geniality and honesty that most papers are glad to publish what he gives them.

Of course, the big show has other press agents. It is necessary to have quite a staff in order to prepare the way for the annual tour. And in their own way they are as charming as he. But Mr. Fellows has become a legend, a tradition, and something will seem to be wrong with spring and summer when he no longer appears with his photographs, his stories and his anecdotes.

Guide to Charm

Eye Beauty Is Possible With Care

By JACQUELINE HUNT

WHEN a man meets a woman, what does he look at first? Nine times out of ten it is her eyes. And in this moment he is definitely attracted — or uninterested. If her eyes are sparkling, alert, friendly and natural in appearance, men will know that she is an intelligent, interesting person and will want to know more about her.

So there you are! If you want to attract men, first of all you must have expressive eyes that are honestly interested in the other person, eyes that are quick to register pleasure or sympathy or to twinkle with humor. Unless you are a mighty clever actress you cannot fake these emotions, so you may have to retouch your personality, too.

Of course men like pretty eyes, too, and since all is fair in love, you cannot be blamed if you resort to eye shadow, pencil and mascara. Men will not mind unless you use your make-up badly or use it with a too heavy hand.

MISS HUNT

They like lashes that are long and dark, but they hate artificial lashes. And they like neat eyebrows but dislike brows plucked to a narrow line or drawn in directions that no natural brow would think of growing.

The first step in beautifying the eyes is to give the eyebrows some attention. Keep their line clear-cut. Get a good pair of tweezers and remove the hairs that grow out of the natural line and spoil its individual appearance and remove the hairs that grow over the bridge of the nose. This should be done once a week.

Each night brush the eyebrows and lashes with a tiny brush made expressly for the purpose. It looks like a small toothbrush with an extra long handle. Or you can use a child's toothbrush for the purpose. Brush upward first to exercise the hairs and remove any bits of dust or cosmetics that have lodged there, then apply a little eyebrow grower or vaseline and smooth into place by drawing the tip of the brush over the natural brow line.

If the hairs in the eyebrows are light in color or stop short at the ends, touch them up and extend them with a black or brown eyebrow pencil. Work lightly, going over the brows several times to give them accent, at the same time avoiding a drawn-in artificial look. Neat, definite eyebrows will give your entire face a youthful appearance and they will make your eyes seem larger and more expressive.

When you have done all that you can with your eyebrow pencil, do some experimenting with eye shadow to deepen the color of your eyes, to give brilliance and mystery. At one time eye shadows were blue or brown and you were supposed to use the one that most nearly matched your eyes, but now there are dozens of shades and you can select any one of a half dozen shades to accent your mood, your costume or your eyes.

More on eye make-up in tomorrow's column.

Beauty Tips

One cosmetician says that every girl should have at least seven brushes on her dressing table—two each for her hair and teeth, and one each for her nails, complexion and bath.

In my opinion, at least three brushes should be added to this list—a soft baby brush for blending your make-up, a stiffer brush for your eyebrows and lashes, and the latest come, an "eye-beauty brush" for applying your eye shadow.

Actresses and stage stars have long used long-handled, camel's hair brushes for applying eye make-up and lip rouge. Now we are discovering how convenient these brushes are, especially for applying eye-shadow.

QUESTION: "Now that I have bought several short-sleeved dresses for spring I am worried about my elbows. They are rough and grubby looking, although I scrub them every time I take a bath.—Edith"

Massage the elbows with a rich softening cream or apply a paste of olive oil and powdered pumice stone. Leave on for ten minutes or longer and then scrub with your hand or bath brush and lots of warm soapsuds. This helps remove the dead cuticle. Whenever you rub a lotion into your hands, apply some to the elbows, too. Leave a little cream on them overnight.

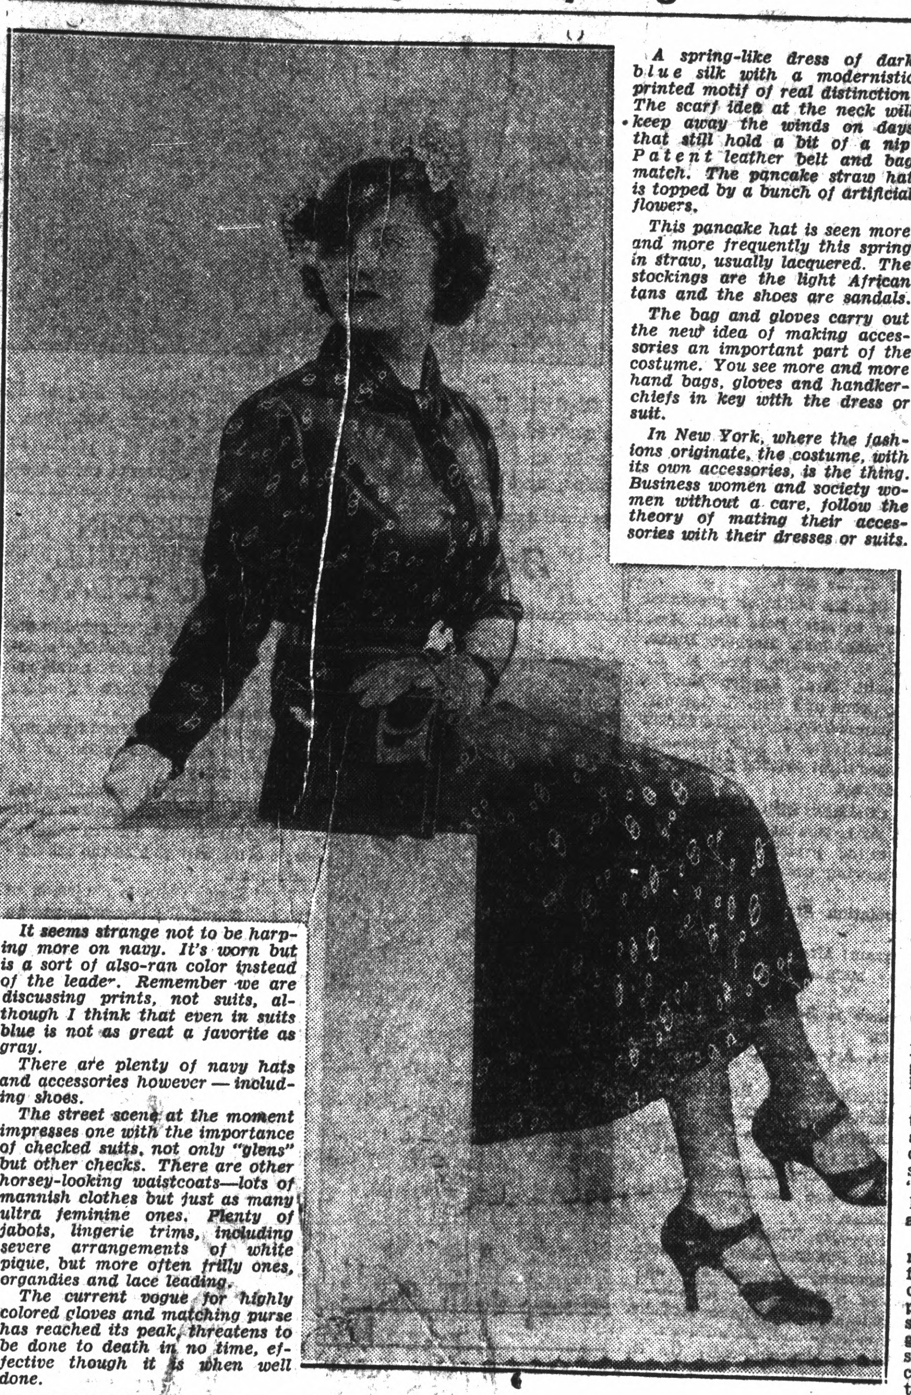
The new petticoat styles are going to give some plain girls a chance to shine. For years the styles have favored the pretty women who could wear tailored and severe things. Now the founces and furbelows are in and the girl or woman who needs some embellishment will have her chance.

Harbinger of Spring



A spring-like dress of dark blue silk with a modernistic printed motif of real distinction. The scarf idea at the neck will keep away the winds on days that still hold a bit of a nip. Patent leather belt and bag match. The pancake straw hat is topped by a bunch of artificial flowers.

This pancake hat is seen more and more frequently this spring in straw, usually lacquered. The stockings are the light African tans and the shoes are sandals.

The bag and gloves carry out the new idea of making accessories an important part of the costume. You see more and more hand bags, gloves and handkerchiefs in key with the dress or suit.

In New York, where the fashions originate, the costume, with its own accessories, is the thing. Business women and society women without a care, follow the theory of mating their accessories with their dresses or suits.

It seems strange not to be harping more on navy. It's worn but is a sort of also-ran color instead of the leader. Remember we are discussing prints, not suits, although I think that even in suits blue is not as great a favorite as gray.

There are plenty of navy hats and accessories however — including shoes.

The street scene at the moment impresses one with the importance of checked suits, not only "glens" but other checks. There are other horsey-looking waistcoats—lots of mannish clothes but just as many ultra feminine ones. Plenty of jabots, lingerie trims, including severe arrangements of white pique, but more often frilly ones, organdies and lace leading.

The current vogue for highly colored gloves and matching purse has reached its peak, threatens to be done to death in no time, effective though it is when well done.

Famous Native Dishes Should Be Well-Cooked

By JUDITH WILSON

TRAVELLERS will tell you it is difficult to find good food when touring this country — yet every section has some dish for which it is well known. The South contributes fried chicken and corn pone. And we hear about the famous shrimp gumbos of the Mississippi, roast beef from the Middle West, hot tamales from the Southwest and clam and fish chowders from New England.

If women in every town large and small would learn to cook her sectional dishes well, demanded fresh fruits and vegetables in season, and really made an effort to learn new things, America would soon become famous for its food the world over.

There is a country hotel in the Middle West which has a reputation almost nationwide for the pancakes which it serves as a dessert.

The town in which it is located is small, but people having heard of the famous meals, stop there. And residents of the district make the hotel a regular part of their diversion.

Light Hat, Dark Dress Are Timely

By IRENE VAIL

New York — With Easter just around the corner, women should consider color from a new angle. We suggest light hats with dark costumes.

The appeal of crisp white with navy or black is a spring annual; and this season gains added strength through lingerie neckwear; blush or apple blossom pink with navy, black or gray is the epitome of the feminine in fashions; heather pink and orchidee may be added to this group. Pistache and pernot green are charming with gray, navy, black or spice brown. The spring suit, whether mannish or dressmaker type, gains fresh slant through a light hat.

"The biggest straw season in years" is the way milliners sum up the situation to date. Not only the biggest flower season, they might add. Flowers interestingly grouped and interesting in their variety including, as we have mentioned, the carnation, a most unusual flower to appear on hats. Have I mentioned that carnations appear on silks, too?

The flower hat has been a general favorite and in this category one must include the small hats fashioned of small fruits and of a combination of fruits or flowers with foliage — glossy green leaves for the body of the hat and flowers for the trimming.

Veils are living up to all expectations. The newest looking veil the entire face and are caught up at the back of the hat.

Bows in white, or pastels, seem inevitable when crisp, feminine trimmings are in the air, as this season. Bows made of white, or pink, pale lilac, light blue, and yellow, suggesting spring flower pastels, are extremely effective on some dark dresses.

In a sense these bows are used like flowers, but in contrast to the flowers, which may be classed as added decorations, the bows are a part of the design of the dress, as well as a light, fresh touch of trimming.

They are often made of allover stitched pique, and are simply the ends of fabric knotted together, the ends being just as large as they can be and still stand perkily.

MODERN WOMEN

Girls Should Always Take a Normal Interest In Boys

By MARIAN MAYS MARTIN

JUST another proof of the fact that the teens take themselves too seriously is furnished in the following letter from a girl of 19 who seems to feel that boys are unworthy of her attention and that a career is the thing. An interest in the opposite sex is normal. The girl who does not experience anything but distaste for boys is unusual. There isn't much choice between the boy-crazy type and the girl who is repelled by boys. At an early age both are liable to outgrow these tendencies.

MRS. MARTIN

I am glad to have so many problem letters from young girls and to be able, perhaps, to advise them correctly. What do you think of this one?

"My dear Mrs. Martin: When I was around 14 a group of girls of the same age and older who attended school with me never thought of anything but the boys. Because my mind ran to what I might call the higher things of life they laughed at me, shunned me and talked behind my back.

"This nearly killed my soul. My mother said I was wrong and should take more interest in boys. I may have done wrong in not having anything to do with the boys, but I don't figure I would have been any better off if I had. I might have been worse, for I might have married. Mother still contends that I should have done so.

She Thought Them Silly

"I thought these girls silly and uncultured. They never matured right or they wouldn't have married the kind of boys they did. I am just 19 and corresponding with a 20-year-old fellow who is cultured and who plays in an orchestra. I have written a song which promises, in the near future, to be very popular. Can't I laugh at the girl who has no career? Which of us was wrong, these girls and mother, or myself? Nineteen."

Among the pet grievances of youth is that it is misunderstood and unappreciated, all because it is exceptional.

Most girls pass through the stage when they ponder, with some sincerity, though not much, on the advantage of a career over marriage. In the days when a girl had actually to choose it was easy to see how the matter might be subject of a good deal of spirited debate. Girls today do not choose. They take either or both. There is no reason why the writer of today's letter should not combine her song writing ability with marriage.

There is something distressing to me about this letter. The girl is evidently the victim of some sort of inhibition about boys and she had better take herself in hand and conquer it. Time will no doubt do it for her, but to go around creating the impression that any thought or consideration of the opposite sex is beneath her is obviously being blind on one side.

Something Is Wrong

Since this girl talks this very hazy notion over with her mother I suggest that the mother talk it over with a wiser head than hers. There's something wrong somewhere. The sooner it is discovered, and any false notions of life cleared up, the better for everybody and for the career.

Nothing but unhappiness lies in the path of anyone whose tendency it is grossly to exaggerate life experiences or to underestimate nature's scheme, in which men are an important factor.

Whatever the deep-seated cause of this girl's trouble, I sincerely advise probing for it so that she may live a normal life and write better songs.

Mrs. Martin will be glad to answer in this column questions of general interest. Mrs. Martin cannot reply individually to every correspondent. Names will not be published. Please address her care of this paper and use only one side when writing.

You and Your Child

Giving In to Crying Is Poor Judgment

By JANE HERBERT GOWARD

THE other morning Ellen asked for a lollypop and mother said, "You can't have it now, Ellen." The child pouted. "But, Ellen, mother never gives you a lollypop in the morning. You can have one later, after your lunch," mother replied.

MRS. GOWARD

Ordinarily this answer would have satisfied Ellen. For mother always gives Ellen a lollypop or a piece of candy after lunch. But on the particular morning in question Ellen had a brand new idea in the back of her head. This she was anxious to try out and hence her stubbornness. Her mother did not argue with her. She tried to ignore the child's howling. But as this was not very easy, she soon after had to speak to the child again. "Stop crying, Ellen. You know mother never gives you anything for crying. You know that. Don't you?"

The little girl blinked back the tears and nodded her head in agreement with mother. Then quickly remembering something, she burst into tears and cried, "But grandma does. I want a lollypop!" Mother shook her head and walked away.

Before long Ellen gave up demanding a lollypop. Indeed she forgot about it, but the crying continued. After a while she approached her mother and between sobs asked, "May I go over to grandma's?" "Certainly, when you stop crying." The crying did not cease, however. Ellen was still testing her will power against mother's. "You can't go to grandmother's in tears. Visitors should always arrive smiling. If you really want to go to grandma's go wash your face and brush your hair."

And, believe it or not, Ellen did exactly as she was told. Children know with whom their teasing and crying will bring them success. You cannot blame Ellen for trying to gain power over mother with her tears. After all, it works with grandmother. Ellen's mother, on the other hand, deserves praise for handling the situation so expertly. By giving in to the child's tears just once, she would have started a chain of trouble.

QUESTION: "When a woman does not dance, what should she do when she finds herself sitting all alone?—Mrs. W. M."

ANSWER: She should get up and seek the society of another or others in the same position. There generally are a few other persons at dances who do not or cannot dance. In seeking their society, a lone woman avoids making herself conspicuous.

QUESTION: "What is the correct way to serve crackers with the soup course? Also, how should hot breads be served?
—Mrs. D. McC."

ANSWER: The plate containing crackers should be covered with a small doily. Hot breads should be folded in a napkin.

Ethiopia on credit.

Banking circles regarded this development as further evidence that Ethiopia's defeat and ultimate submission to Italy are viewed by the government as inevitable.

However, Eden's departure to attend the meeting of the conciliation committee of 13—the Council minus Italy—was accompanied by a statement that Britain is prepared to go as far as any other nation in applying for extending sanctions. But it was reaffirmed that singlehanded action by Great Britain is out of the question.

cial life. They are: Supervisor James N. Long, Constable M. G. Meitoza, San Pablo; Constable J. W. Smiley, Attorney Tsar N. Calfee, and Justices of the Peace A. H. MacKinnon, El Cerrito, and Ray H. Standish, Crockett.

As a mark of honor, a State highway patrol, with which the late justice was very closely associated, will escort the remains to San Pablo and Macdonald, and another patrol will await the funeral cortege at the city limits and escort the remains to Santa Cruz.

In Santa Cruz, the services will be conducted by the Rev. John F. Wilson, pastor of the M. E. Church of that city. The interment will be in Odd Fellows cemetery.

In that city the pallbearers will be boyhood friends of the deceased. They will be Fred McPherson, publisher of the Santa Cruz Sentinel, ex-mayor Fred L. Howe, Bert Foster, retired banker, Willis Ware, county auditor, Ed Daubenbiss of the First National Bank, and Charles Towne, a former business associate of the deceased.

Bridgeman, a sand blaster, was arrested last night about 8:15 o'clock by Deputy Sheriff E. S. Crist of San Pablo. He is now on probation on a similar charge in this county.

REPORTING POLITICS

THERE is no more exacting news assignment than reporting politics. This is true particularly in a presidential year.

United Press, with its customary foresight, last June began its factual, unbiased, impartial political coverage for the 1936 presidential campaign. Representatives of ten states met in the mid-West grass roots convention at Springfield, Ill., at that time.

Since then expert United Press political writers have been moving across the United States covering the big pre-convention stories; making cross section surveys of various states; interviewing prospective candidates; watching new political movements and reporting day by day maneuvering.

These factors insure dominant political news coverage for UNITED PRESS client newspapers with UNITED PRESS . . . ACCURACY . . . SPEED . . . INDEPENDENCE.

bers of the proposal on the November ballot calling for repeal of the sales tax. Pierce declared that, however, there is a "joker" attached to the sales tax law repeal which would call for a single tax plan in the state. The speaker declared that the single tax proposal would be ruinous to the state.

Following luncheon at a Crockett hotel, the board reconvened at the clubhouse to hear John Allen of the Oakland board of education and an official of the state trustees association. He discussed the work of the state association.

flank during the march on Addis Ababa.

Military experts now believe Badoglio will base several squadrons of airplanes at Dessye preparatory to the push on Addis Ababa.

CITY ENCIRCLED

Throughout last night Italian troops circled Dessye. They entered the city at dawn and hoisted their flag over the palace the emperor used as his general headquarters until he was forced to evacuate.

A native army corps was the first to enter Dessye. It captured the city without resistance.

The bloodless capture of Dessye, commercial capital of Northern Ethiopia, definitely puts the Italians on the last stepping stone for the advance on Ethiopia's capital and completes the marathon-like march which began after the battle of Lake Ashangi.

Bond Issue For Bridge Section Given Approval

SACRAMENTO, April 15—UP—A new $12,000,000 issue of revenue bonds to provide finances for completing the vehicular sections of the San Francisco-Oakland bay bridge was approved today by the state toll bridge authority.

November 7 was set as the tentative date for opening the span to traffic.

When the new issue of bonds is sold to the federal government, a total of $55,650,000 will have been expended on the bridge. The completion of the vehicular sections will end work on the bridge except for construction of interurban lines.

Another $15,000,000 will be sufficient to provide these facilities, Earl Lee Kelly, director of public works said.

to say. In fact in strolling down Macdonald avenue yesterday I noted that the same old pedestrian sins of omission and commission were still in vogue. The situation even seemed to be aggravated. Perhaps some of the offenders had read my diatribes and wanted to show me how little they thought of them.

Anyway I saw mothers with infants by the hand dart from behind machines and out into the center of the street, giving indignant looks at drivers that nearly run them down; grocery clerks taking boxes of food across the avenue and acting as pilot for portly matrons; mechanics disregarding the law and rules of common sense and indulging in some jay-walking. Surely the arms of God must be around the necks of a lot of people in this town, I thought, or business certainly would be brisk for the hospitals and undertakers.

Yes, the pedestrian has many sins to answer for, I will concede in all sincerity. Then why does he pursue his unlawful course, disregarding all the decencies?

I can only speak from an experience of two years in Richmond, but during that time I cannot remember of an arrest of a pedestrian for jay-walking or any other similar, but heinous offense. I have read and written many accounts, on the contrary, of drivers being pinched for infractions of rules of the road. Perhaps if a few were dragged to the hoosegow and later made to appear before Judge Odell and attempt to explain, there would be a reformation take place that might eliminate to some extent the complaint of the man who insists that I have been loudly vocal against the driver and significantly silent in favor of the pedestrian.

OLD PEOPLE find way to keep breath wholesome

Halitosis (bad breath) quickly yields to Listerine, safe antiseptic and deodorant

Either because of stomach disturbances, food fermentation, or the wearing of false teeth, old people frequently have halitosis (bad breath). No wonder others consider them a nuisance.

But now Science has found that the regular use of Listerine will often overcome offensive mouth odors due to the fermentation of tiny bits of food on mouth, teeth, or dental plate surfaces.

This safe antiseptic and quick deodorant works quickly. It cleanses mouth, teeth, and gum surfaces. Halts fermentation and putrefaction, a major cause of odors, and then counteracts the odors themselves.

Try using Listerine every two or three days. See how much more wholesome it leaves your mouth. How it sweetens your breath. Lambert Pharmacal Co., St. Louis, Mo.

FREEZE OUT LOOMS OVER DOCK ROWS

ient points emerged into bolder relief tonight:

SHIP MEN UNITED

1.—Shipowners appeared determined to end present hiring hall operations.

2.—Employers are convinced that the longshoremen' labor relations committee established at the end of the 1934 maritime and general strike has broken down completely.

3.—The present impasse threatens a final showdown effort by employers to "freeze out" local maritime union leaders who for three years have been labeled radicals, Communists, professional troublemakers, aliens and agitators.

NO PEACE SEEN

"We have no desire to abrogate the arbitration award," C. Lyn Fox, spokesman for the Waterfront Employers Association, said regarding working agreements reached at end of the 1934 strike.

"The sooner the Pacific Coast District I. L. A. takes over in San Francisco and gives the employers assurance that the causes of the numerous local violations have been removed and will not recur in the future, the quicker we can resume full operations under the award, including the hiring hall and all other phases of the award."

Lewis indicated coming difficulties in any peace efforts.

Today seven gangs of longshoremen appeared at the dock of the Grace liner Santa Rosa and offered to unload her cargo. Branded "unfair" by the Maritime Federation of the Pacific—a coalition of coast marine unions—the Santa Rosa's cargo went untouched yesterday. As a result of bickering over this issue the employers announced severance of all relations with the local longshoremen.

The gangs were refused work. Employers explained that they no longer would hire men through the union's "hiring hall," which they charged has become a corrupt device to give chosen "trouble makers" and subservient followers of radical leaders jobs.

Bridge Approach Contracts Will Be Awarded Soon

SACRAMENTO, April 15—UP—Contracts for the construction of the Waldo approach to the Golden Gate bridge are expected to be awarded by the State Department of Public Works next week, it was announced today.

Bids on the two units of the project were opened today. The Macco Construction Company, Clearwater, offered the low tender of $770,204.80 for the construction of 3.4 miles of highway, and T. E. Conley Company of San Francisco, was low with $587,917.50 for the 0.3 mile concrete tunnel unit.

The approach, when completed, will connect the Redwood highway directly with the Golden Gate bridge, opening up a vast hinterland, which heretofore has been cut off from the San Francisco metropolitan area.

MONEY STOLEN

On December 13, 1934, two messengers of the First Boston Corporation delivered a package containing $590,000 in treasury notes to a clerk in the securities department of the U. S. Trust Company, located in the heart of New York financial district at 45 Wall street. The clerk turned for a moment to prepare a substitute package which was to be taken back by the messengers. The money disappeared as if by sleight of hand. No clues could be found by police who questioned employees and searched the premises.

Federal agents were called in. Their investigation led from New York City to various sections of the mid-west to California, along the East coast to Miami, Florida and even to the resort island of Bahama. On June 10 last year agents arrested Mervin B. Smith, at Topeka, Kans. Concealed in his hatband was one of the $10,000 treasury notes that had been stolen. Underworld agents then "established appropriate contacts in the underworld" as Hoover phrased it to find out who still held the bulk of the stolen securities.
